Explore the vastest of landscapes and otherworldly experiences in Upper Mustang. This trek in Upper Mustang takes hikers into the rural part of western Nepal, where the environment is similar to Tibet's. It is an arid land, though full of beautiful, blossoming mountain flowers. The Kali Gandaki River's pristine roaring waters bring life to the area. You will find great pleasure in hiking on this unique trail. The former Lo Kingdom seems to be undisturbed by the passing of time. You will be blow away by the mysterious caves, suspended several dozen meters high into the side of a cliff. Equally spectacular is the Tibetan culture found in the area. You will find the people to be most kind and inviting. The Upper Mustang area, which used to be a yak caravan route to trade with Tibet, was opened to foreigners in 1992.

The route to Upper Mustang takes you along the Kali Gandaki River. Wearing open trekking sandals will make crossing shallow waters more pleasant. You should consult with your travel expert at The Trekkers' Society about this – advice may vary according to season.
